

Quizzes and Communications*

Jongbin Kim

Question 2002. I. 1. Environmental decay is one of the most serious problems market cannot efficiently solve. It is encouraging that environmental economics attracts much attention recently.

If a polluter is not punished unless the damage is proven, a long river may be more easily contaminated than a lake. Interpret the above statement on a probability base.

* In this section, questions are proposed, daring the reader to answer them. Submitted answers will be considered for publication. The proposers' own answers will appear in the next issue.

 Emeritus Professor of Applied Statistics, College of Business and Economics, Yonsei University, Seoul 120-749 Korea.